

Roads to Success is a new program designed to help middle and high school students prepare for their futures. This newsletter will keep you posted on what we're doing in school, and how families can follow through at home. To find out more, visit www.roadstosuccess.org

Did you know?

Between 2007 and 2009 nearly 24% of 20- to 34-year olds lived with their parents for some time.

Experts say the recession along with the rising costs of education and housing contributed to the increase in numbers.

Managing Money

Beginning salaries sound huge to young people who've never been responsible for paying the bills. Teens may expect fabulous apartments, sporty cars, and lots of luxuries as the logical result of hard work. Real life can be a real shock.

How can parents help prepare kids for life on their own? Things to discuss with your high school student:

Know what income to expect. Students may have unrealistic expectations about how they'll support themselves. RUPrepareND.com has salary information on many different careers.

But salaries are only part of the story. Teens may be surprised at the size of their paychecks once taxes and other deductions have been taken out. The next step is comparing income to expenses.

Know what things cost.

Looking at the cost of renting an apartment, owning a car, and buying groceries is a good reality check.

Students can expect to pay about a third of their income on housing. (In many places, rent is so expensive, they'll need a roommate to split the bills.) Transportation (car payment, insurance, and gas), utilities, food, clothing, and entertainment also need to be considered. See www.consumerjungle.com for tips for sharing this info with your teen.

Anticipate monthly payments for student loans. Student loans are a pretty good deal for students who want to attend college. But monthly payments take a big bite out of take-home pay for young people who are just starting out, and it's good to know what to expect.

Stay out of credit card debt. 2/3 of people with credit cards don't pay them off every month. Interest on the unpaid balance and late fees can really add up! The Consumer Jungle website explains it this way: Suppose you are a 22-year-old with $5000 in credit card debt at 18% interest. If you pay only the minimum payment each month, you'll be 50 by the time it's paid off. Don't use a credit card for things you don't really need. Don't use a credit card unless you can pay it off each month.

Grade by Grade: Money in the Classroom

Ninth grade Roads to Success students participate in two real-life lessons in budgeting. In the first, they pick a monthly salary based on a job they could get with a high school degree. In the second, they can choose a career from one of three groups: degree from a community college or tech school, four-year college, or college plus more education (like medical school or law school).

There are two important lessons here. One is that education after high school provides more career options, often with better salaries. The second is that few recent graduates have jobs that allow them to buy everything they want. Saving, planning, and self-restraint are keys to a bright financial future.
